

QUEEN VIC IN A STEW.

Her Majesty Greatly Disgusted With Her Sojourn in Biarritz.

BOTHERED WITH A RED NOSE.

Naughty Newspaper Men Telling Funny Fairy Stories About Her.

BISMARCK AFTER A BRITISH BRIDE.

No Other Reason Assignable for the Young Count's Visit to England.

Queen Victoria has caught a cold and is in worse spirits than usual. She dislikes Biarritz more than ever. It is claimed that special correspondents have been telegraphing exaggerated stories about her Majesty. The object of Count Herbert Bismarck's visit to London is yet a mystery, though it is thought that he is after an English bride.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times. The queen first read of the incident in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

MANY FORTUNATE MEN.

A Large Number Appointed to Office and Confirmed by the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to-day:

James Tanner, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to be Commissioner of Pensions, James M. Shackelford, of Indiana, to be Judge of the United States Court for the Indian Territory. Zachariah L. Walwood, of Kansas, to be Attorney of the United States Court for the Indian Territory. Thomas B. Nesbitt, of Illinois, to be Marshal of the United States Court for the Indian Territory. Walter Corbett, of Georgia, to be Marshal of the United States for the Southern District of Georgia. Edwin Willits, of Michigan, to be Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. A long list of military promotions followed, and then another big batch of postmasters, among whom were the following: William D. Walton, at Stroudsburg, Pa.; Mary B. Higley, at Minersville, Pa.; Joseph K. Johnson, at Coshocton, O., and John R. Coan, at New York.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

BISMARCK'S BIG BOY.

Count Herbert's Trip to England Fraught with Significance.

THE STATUS OF SAMOAN AFFAIRS

Will Undoubtedly be Discussed with the British Diplomats.

WILLIAM WANTS TO PUT ON AGONY.

German Papers Angry at the Arrogant Action of the Police Officers.

The visit of Count Herbert Bismarck to England is regarded with great interest at Berlin. Emperor William's proposed trip to Samoa and affairs will be considered together with other international matters. The German newspapers are very much excited over the increasing severity of the Government in regard to the press.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

SHOT IN THE MOUTH.

A Young Colored Man Murdered on Second Avenue This Morning.

JEALOUSY CAUSES THE CRIME.

The Murderer Escapes but the Officers Are in Close Pursuit.

YELLOW ROW AGAIN TO THE FRONT

"Buddy" Lee, a colored puddler formerly employed at the Black Diamond Steel Works, was murdered at 2 o'clock this morning by Charles Allen in front of his residence, No. 251 Second Avenue. The house is in the Yellow Row and is a three-story frame structure, occupied by a number of colored families. Mrs. Eva Reynolds is the landlady. Allen, who is also colored, was intoxicated last night and imagined that Lee had insulted his wife. He left the house last evening, saying, "I am going to kill a nigger to-night." He returned to the house about 2 o'clock and found Lee standing on the sidewalk. Several women were in the doorway when Allen arrived and without a moment's warning Allen fired two shots. The first hit Lee in the arm and the second in the mouth.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

LEAVING DIXIE BEHIND THEM.

Almost a Score of Negroes From North Carolina for Arkansas.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

RALEIGH, N. C., March 23.—Negroes moving in the project to colonize all the negroes of this State in Arkansas, held a mass meeting here last night and organized the "North Carolina Emigration Association." Several negroes from different parts of the State were here and addressed the meeting, stating they had been agitating the matter for some time. The Association will be open to the State at large, and it is designed to ultimately include all the negroes in North Carolina, with a view to colonizing them in Arkansas.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

THE MUSIC WORLD.

An Encouraging Sign of Growing Interest in Organ Melody.

POSITION OF THE INSTRUMENT

One of the Chief Factors in Evolving Harmonious Tones.

The number of new organs, large and small, that have recently been built for Pittsburgh churches, furnish a most encouraging sign of growing interest in a department of music that has hitherto been too much neglected. A few practical hints on the subject may not be out of place this morning.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

THE MUSIC WORLD.

An Encouraging Sign of Growing Interest in Organ Melody.

POSITION OF THE INSTRUMENT

One of the Chief Factors in Evolving Harmonious Tones.

The number of new organs, large and small, that have recently been built for Pittsburgh churches, furnish a most encouraging sign of growing interest in a department of music that has hitherto been too much neglected. A few practical hints on the subject may not be out of place this morning.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

THE MUSIC WORLD.

An Encouraging Sign of Growing Interest in Organ Melody.

POSITION OF THE INSTRUMENT

One of the Chief Factors in Evolving Harmonious Tones.

The number of new organs, large and small, that have recently been built for Pittsburgh churches, furnish a most encouraging sign of growing interest in a department of music that has hitherto been too much neglected. A few practical hints on the subject may not be out of place this morning.

BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.

LONDON, March 23.—[Copyright.]—Queen Victoria is still dissatisfied with Biarritz. The balmy breezes which were to have fanned her into renewed youth have proved unavailing. There have been cruelly cold nights, and the queen, who is used to the sun and sea, has been rendered ruddier by the always ruddy and cold royal nose. Her Majesty has also caught cold, and the royal temper, which is rarely broken, has become worse, to the great discomfort of Dr. Reid, who, unlike his tripartite partner, but as the only one for a cold in the royal household, with one's feet in mustard and water.

Her Majesty is also annoyed by the pertinacity of certain pressmen, native and foreign, including special correspondents, sent to Biarritz by local newspapers. It is no secret that she hates reports on this subject are recorded in the book which she wrote many years ago upon her life in the Highlands.

During her stay in Biarritz no newspaper man has been allowed to get within hearing of Her Majesty's voice, and the reduced to the old-time expedient of substituting fiction for fact.

THE SWEET STORIES EXPLODED.

One man sent home a sweet little story calculated to bring tears into the eyes of every English woman, of how Her Majesty kissed and cuddled a baby whose nurse had fed her with the milk of a cow. The story was pretty, but as the queen is far from being built in a way to inspire awe, there were those who doubted it.

Events have been reported in the newspapers. At the moment she was in the throes of influenza, and her royal temper, Sir Henry Ponsonby and other court officials were summoned to the royal presence, and the official denial, then and there drafted, was telegraphed to the Times.

Count Bismarck in good spirits.

I met Count Herbert Bismarck just as he was leaving the German Embassy, to-day, about 2 o'clock. He looked like an athlete, and the color in his cheeks would have done credit to a Dublin pug. He is a man no longer trained fiercely aloof, but drops at the ends with melancholy dignity. The Minister-President of Germany was apparently in the best of spirits. He was, of course, talkative on publication on state matters, but he was emphatic and forcible in his denials. He said that Kaiser's health was superb. I explained to him that rumors of all kinds concerning the Emperor's health had been circulating in the United States. He said that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health, and that he had been told that the Emperor was in the best of health.

THE VISIT STILL A MYSTERY.

All the politicians in town are afloat about the significance of the visit of England of the son of the Iron Chancellor. It may be confessed that it is all guess work. The British Ambassador in Berlin came hurriedly to London a few days ago, and the fact that Count Herbert Bismarck has just followed him is looked upon by a very considerable portion of the press as an indication that England is about to enter into the triple alliance. This is looked upon as absurd here.

THE TRAIL OF A FRAUD.

A Mexican Draws a Pension for a Dead Man's Name.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

SANTE FE, March 23.—Jose Maria Garcia, of this city, has evidently gotten him into a serious scrape. For years past he has been drawing a pension for reasons of wounds which he claims to have received during the war in the battle of Valverde. Many years ago a man died in his house, and in his effects was found a discharge issued to Jose Maria Garcia, and when the deceased was laid away this important once assumed the above name and filed his application for a pension, which he has been receiving regularly for years. The real name of the man is not known, although he has resided and practiced law on a very small scale for many years.

THE WEATHER.

For Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, fair, followed in West Virginia by light rain, stationary temperature, preceded in Western Pennsylvania by slightly warmer, variable winds.

PITTSBURGH, March 23, 1889.

Time	Ther.	Wind	Bar.
7 A. M.	32	N. by E.	30.0
10 A. M.	34	N. by E.	30.0